

Charcoal Class

The new month of November sees the topic in Science changing from Biology to Physics and magnets. Charcoal class members have explored where magnets are in our everyday life (including inside and outside fridge doors) and predicted the effects of magnetic poles. However, Science is an everyday occurrence and not just a taught lesson for example making an irreversible chemical change in food tech with the creation of delicious scones.

